Introduction

Original notes can be found in this link: <https://goo.gl/kw4XWT>

General Notes and Tips

- There's no RNG manipulation in this run. As such, you can feel free to do whatever cursor movement you like.
- All X/Y switching strategies in this route are up to personal preference, though generally speaking you want to at least follow the order of characters used each turn.
- These notes assume fixed growths mode where the stats of characters are always the same, assuming you follow the route. The route will not be consistent nor hold if you decide to run random mode. More details about fixed growths can be found here.
- Don't skip cutscenes for opening chests, this is slower than letting them play out.
- Do skip cutscenes for opening doors, though.
- Cursor Movement - You should be holding B anytime you select and move the cursor for longer distances. Hold B before selecting a character so you don't accidentally cancel.
 - D-pad is useful for straight rigid movement. The cursor will always be stopped by terrain / enemy units and the current character's movement range.
 - Analog stick is useful for diagonal movement and/or moving through terrain, since the analog stick will never be stopped by terrain / enemy units. However, it also isn't stopped by the character's movement range.
- You should be doing the FEP (Fast Enemy Phase) glitch on every turn in the run (this makes the camera move more quickly between non-player units, saving minutes overall).
 - Holding B as your last action ends, then opening the menu and ending turn while holding B should always work.
 - If you did a character movement without holding B, it's better to open the main menu while holding B and a direction (like FEP in radiant dawn).
- On Enemy Phase, holding down the A button will make it so the white box around a character will not appear.
- Mashing A and Start clears the exp bar faster (both in a level and bonus exp in base).
- Mashing start clears the level up screen faster.
- X = do an X-switch.
 - Pressing X on a character will jump the cursor to the next unused character in the unit list.
 - Pressing X on an empty tile will jump the cursor to the top unused character in the unit list.
 - You should be holding B during all X switches so the camera move quickly.
 - Note abbreviations for X-switching:
 - * "2X" = press X twice to jump to Character
 - * "Off X" = press X on an empty tile to jump to Character
 - * "X on Character1" = move cursor to Character1, press X to jump to Character2
- Y = do a Y-switch.
 - Pressing Y on a character brings up the character screen. This is primarily useful for going backwards in the unit list since it skips moving the camera when you cancel. For example, if the top of the Unit List is Ike, Marcia, Tanith, and you want to select Marcia after moving Tanith, you press Y on Tanith, press up once, then press B to instantly select Marcia.

- Drop Killer Bow
- This strategy can fail if one of the follows happen:
 - Tanith misses the sniper. Her displayed hitrate is usually high 90ish to 100%
 - The boss hits Marcia twice, one of which is a crit. The chance of this depends on biorhythm, but worst-case scenario (Marcia has bad biorhythm and boss has good biorhythm) is approximately 8% chance.
 - The boss hits Marcia with a crit and Colossus. The chances of this are laughably low, so if it happens, I'm sorry.

- If Largo dies (pretty unlikely), just keep going since he's not really needed afterwards (though this may mess up unit management later on). This should only happen if the sniper survives Largo's attack, and crits him twice. Tanith should hopefully be able to clean up after him.
- All units should be dead by the end of turn 3 enemy phase. If some units dodged and/or survived, finish them off in turn 4

- Reyson:
 - Move 5U
 - Chant Marcia
- Marcia:
 - Move 11U
 - Drop Ike left
- End
- A bishop should attempt to put Marcia to sleep. The result of this doesn't matter. Then Ashnard should move towards Ike and attack.
- Ideal outcome: Ashnard hits Ike (displayed 65-85%) and activates Resolve + Wrath and gets a crit (two chances of 50% crit rates)
- Other outcomes:
 - Ashnard hits Ike but Ike doesn't crit: just finish off Ashnard during next player phase. Ike has a 100% hitrate with resolve, so he's guaranteed to kill Ashnard
 - Ashnard misses Ike (he has a 63-83% displayed hitrate): the game hates you. Run away with Marcia (all right all down), run away with Elincia have Ike stay in place, and really hope he gets hit next enemy phase.
 - If #2 happens and Ashnard misses Ike AGAIN: the game hates you. Game Over.
